Mrs. D.C. Blair
Montour Falls
New York

31 January, 1917.

How is my family now? I never saw anything like the way you are taking turns at it. Is Bub still intact?

Well, here's hoping the Blairs are feeling finely by now. I wish I could be home to help you out, Mutter dear. Is Aunt M. up yet? Give her just lots and lots of love for me.

What do you think? Blanche is coming sometime in February. Happy? Why yes I am quite pleased.

I had one exam yesterday, and handed in my final paper in English lit. today. Saturday comes Philosophy 12 Exam, and Tuesday Education. Henrietta and I are taking exams mighty easily this year, and enjoying our vacation immensely. Ethel is covering fellows at present.

Polly Blair gave me her picture the other day and I'll try to remember to put it in my laundry case.

I am sending Bert a little birthday package - hope it suits him, I'll try to get it off tomorrow.

Really have work to do, even tho
I am not worrying about it.
Don't worry about my working too hard, Mutter dear. Last week was a bad one, but that is over now, and I am taking things moderately now.

I am going to write my brother soon. He's an awfully nice boy, he is.

Muriel says to send her love. Two weeks from tonight she will be on her way to Ithaca. She hasn't decided yet whether to come back Saturday or Sunday night.

Philosophy awaits. Goodnight all of you.
I wish I could see you.

Lots of love,
Eleanor
